Volatile & Venomous: A Love Story

Capstone Collection

The Clown Queen of Crime and the Green Goddess fall in love. Inspired by Harley Quinn and Poison Ivy from DC, from doctors to super villains to friends to lovers, it's their story reimagined and told in costumes on a runway. The looks operate in pairs, walking together.

The Clown is vintage circus reborn, and the Goddess is texture and embellishment. Both have exaggerated silhouettes and pieces. Volatile and Venemous's aesthetic is a juxtaposition between two different people. This is seen in contrasting details like geometric vs fluid shapes and red vs green. On the surface these appear to be opposites, however as the collection progresses, these details and looks blend and come together to form a unity.

Fabric Story

Illustrated Line-up

Look 1

Look 1 focuses on the clown queen character. Using a circus tent as inspiration, the ‘dress’ of this outfit represents a physically immobilizing relationship. This calls back to Harley Quinn’s relationship with the Joker, and her need to break free from him in her story.

Look 2

Look 2 focuses on the green goddess, a character inspired by Poison Ivy. As her first appearance after being reborn, this look is fresh and full of symbolism. The foxglove flower (featured on the skirt) in flower language is associated with youth and insecurity. At this point in her story, she coming to terms with her new persona and identity.

Look 3

Look 3 hones in on the clown. Liberating the model into a pant and bralette top, this look symbolizes the freedom and experimentation after leaving a controlling relationship. The plushie pants have iconic symbols associated with Harley Quinn, and shares the same color pallet as the first look.

Look 4

Look 4 shifts focus back on the goddess. This look's sleeves feature the North American Pitcher Plant. Like many carnivorous fly traps, in flower language the pitcher plant is associated with persistence and empowerment. At this point in her story, she coming into her own, however her dress is assymetric, alluding to her being incomplete or lacking balance.

Look 5

Look 5 competes our clown's love story. Finally finding confidence in herself, this bridal look features similar elements as look 1, without hindering movement. This symbolizes harmony and heath and with the addition of pink to her color pallet, a softer side to her character and story.

Look 6

Look 6 completes the goddess storyline as well. Introducing yellow into her color pallet, the goddess character has achieved happiness. Her dress, sleeves and collar are symmetrical, as she has found her balance with the clown character. Her bridal look is floor length, with ivy hand beaded on the sweep and cuffs. She has a similar yet unique ombré to match her compliment.
